

You are supposed to be able to wire a GFCI this way, so the downstream circuit is protected - but this always trips the GFCI

This is how I have it wired - no "downstream," protection for the regular outlet, and only the GFCI outlet itself is protected